STONG ARGUMENT FOR A BETTER ROAD

Bend, Ky., Mar. 16—Good roads seem to be the most important topic under discussion at the present time. The legislature is taking quite an interest and is passing some important bills for the benefit of better roads and the farmers—good roads always benefit the farmer. Now to the point. There are approximately two miles of road in Madison County leading from College Hill through the Bend to the Kentucky river near the mouth of Noland's Creek. If it were possible for the Hon. Joe S. Boggs, Judge Goodloe and the members of the Fiscal court to ride horseback over this road now, while the mud is axle deep and see men with six mules trying to move a load which two could move more easily if they had a decent road, they would realize the mud and the benefits of a road to this point.

There are five of the largest landholders of the Bend who live at College Hill and haul their corn, hay, tobacco, in fact nearly everything raised on their farms, over this road. There are others living in the Bend who have to travel this road. There are a great many cattle, hogs and sheep raised here, but are driven out during the summer and fall months when the roads are dry. It seems that if those men who have the controlling power could see and be made to realize the benefits to be derived from building this short piece of road they would lend a helping hand.

There is a class of mighty good men that come around once every four years, advocating better roads, or anything to help the poor farmer. This soon passes by; nothing doing until another four years shall have rolled around.

The building of this road would tap Estill county which would bring hundreds of dollars of trade to College Hill, Waco and Richmond. As it is, this trade is driven to other points on account of egress and ingress.

Levi Richardson, a well-to-do farmer living at the terminus of the proposed road, declares that if the above named gentlemen will ride on this road while the mud is deepest he will have prepared for them a real old fashioned country dinner, consisting of ham, eggs, etc. and if Judge Goodloe will have the prohibition law set aside just for a few hours he might have a "little of the creetur on the side."

Trusting this road proposition will be given due consideration and there will be in the near future steps taken to build a pike or a mile at least, we believe the College Hill and Bend citizens will cooperate in building said road.

The Jewell warehouse in Lexington sold 5,545 pounds of tobacco at $13.86 yesterday. There were no sales at the People's House.

BURRY WOOL RESULTS IN BIG ANNUAL LOSS

Lexington, Ky., Mar. 17—With the average Kentucky sheep shearing about five pounds of wool, farmers in the state lose about 50 cents on each fleece marketed with burrs in it. Sheep specialists at the College of Agriculture have estimated in pointing out the advantages of removing these before selling the wool. Wool containing burrs is always discriminated against by buyers, the price last year for burry wool being approximately two-thirds of that paid for clean wool. Wool worth 30 cents a pound will bring only 20 cents when it contains burrs. In view of the fact that the state produces about 3,000,000 pounds of wool each year, a reduction of ten cents a pound on that containing burrs represents a heavy annual loss to farmers of the state which could be avoided by the specialists say.

"On the college farm we have found that burrs can be clipped off more quickly and easily before the sheep are sheared than they can after the shearing has been done," L. J. Horlacher, in charge of the sheep work says. "Then, too, if the grower attempts to clip or pick out burrs after shearing, the fleece is likely to be torn apart so that it will not be in such good market condition."

There is a slow but steady improvement in business throughout the country.
